HOUSE OF COMMONS
CANADA

Maurice Vellacott, MP
Saskatoon-Wanuskewin

Vellacott praises the good work of Saskatoon Canada Post workers

For Immediate Release March 5, 2009

OTTAWA – In the House of Commons today, Saskatoon-Wanuskewin MP Maurice Vellacott said:

> Mr Speaker, I rise to celebrate the hard work of the 137 Canada Post employees at the postal plant on 51st Street in Saskatoon across from my MP office. Those good workers contribute to making Canada Post one of the most trusted federal institutions in the eyes of the Canadian public. I congratulate them on their achievement over many years in making adjustments to transform and enhance the quality of service delivery.
>
> Every day, millions of Canadians rely on Canada Post workers to help them communicate, send and receive payments, advertise and ship their products. We commend Canada Post where they directly invest in the future of their employees. A new, state-of-the-art mail processing plant has been announced for the Winnipeg International Airport.
>
> I also commend the contribution of Canada Post employees, customers and suppliers in my riding in helping the newly-formed Canada Post Foundation for Mental Health reach its 2008 $1-million fundraising goal.
>
> It's been a long and brutal winter and so, for our postal carriers – and especially my postal carrier, Robert Winslow – along with them, we look forward to warmer and sunnier spring days in which to do their important work in connecting us across the country and around the world.
